

Part 3: Model Answer

How do you think mobile phones have changed the way that people take photos?

Right, well, I guess nowadays, with a decent smartphone, anyone can take a pretty professional-looking photo. I think smartphones have meant that people take a lot more photos because- well- they always have their phone on them and it's super easy to take a quick snap and instantly share it with your friends through apps like Instagram and Facebook. It seems to me that we have also changed what we take photos of. We used to take photos of things that we find interesting, and we still do that... But we also tend to take a lot more selfies as well.

Useful vocabulary

A decent smartphone

A mobile phone that has good overall performance, including features like a reliable camera, sufficient storage, fast processing speed, and a durable build.

"With a decent smartphone, anyone can take a professional-looking photo."

A quick snap

A fast, informal photograph taken without much preparation or thought.

"It's easy to take a quick snap and share it to social media."

Used to (do something)

Something you do regularly in the past.

"We used to take photos of interesting objects."

Tend to

A phrase used to describe a habit or a usual behaviour.

"Nowadays, we tend to take more photos of food."

Write your answer

How do you think mobile phones have changed the way that people take photos?

IELTS Preparation Courses
englishprotips.com