

Part 3: Model Answer

What kind of people like to live in a foreign country?

All sorts, I guess. Ultimately, there're a variety of reasons why people move to a foreign country. They might be emigrating in order to find work or in search of a different lifestyle or climate, for example. Some move so that their children have a different upbringing, and some are forced to move because of troubles in their home country. I don't think there's necessarily a "kind of people" who live in a foreign country.

Useful vocabulary

All sorts

Many different kinds.

"All sorts, I guess."

Emigrate

To leave one's own country to live in another.

"They might be emigrating in order to find work or in search of a different lifestyle or climate, for example."

In search of (something)

Looking for something.

"They might be emigrating in order to find work, or in search of a different lifestyle or climate, for example."

Upbringing

The way a child is raised or educated.

"Some move so that their children have a different upbringing, and some are forced to move because of troubles in their home country."

Write your answer

What kind of people like to live in a foreign country?

IELTS Preparation Courses
englishprotips.com